whole amount. On an average, a third of the full amount would be an ample provision, and if this rule were adopted, we might perhaps see some reduction in the number of pluralist officials and absenteeism on leave, who now swell our expenditure, and diminish the efficiency of the Government Service.

Two inquiries were commenced yesterday on the bodies of female children found dead, and nothing material was elicited and both cases were consequently adjourned.

The Consulate of the different nationalities, at their own suggestion, and as an act of courtesy, called on His Excellency Sir Robert Grey, Macdonnell at Government House, at 11 o'clock a.m., yesterday.

the first count, since that was represented which was not the case. The fact of the matter was that Jamal was represented to be liable, and F. M. & Co. were not liable. Therefore if Jamal was liable as a matter of fact, or if F. M. & Co. were not liable as a matter of fact, the representation was not the case. M. & Co. were not liable as a matter of fact, the representation was not the case.

His Lordship said he understood that he did not at all complain of the length.

Mr. Francis went on to draw special attention to what he considered the important point in the argument, namely, that there was no evidence at all to support the alleged intent, and the reference on this point to the evidence of the witnesses.

Chief Justice said he understood that the charge was that of tampering with the evidence of Leong-Akum's death, there must be a real danger that the evidence would be tampered with.

Mr. Francis said that was so, and with regard to tampering with evidence, he would refer again to R. v. Ingham to show that though it might be done with intent to deceive and to pervert the course of justice, it was not a crime.

Mr. Drummmond then rose to argue against the objections raised on behalf of the defendants. The whole thing was in a very small compass, and he would not dwell on it.

His Lordship sat yesterday to hear the legal points reserved in this case; Mr. Drummmond appearing for the prosecution, and Mr. Francis for the defence.

Mr. Francis, after explaining that he appeared under the special circumstances set forth in the affidavit, proceeded to argue the legal points reserved in this case.

Under Ordinance 2 of 1869, sec. 3, which conferred power on his Lordship to hear points reserved on criminal trials, he submitted that there had been no tampering with the evidence, and that the evidence was not tampered with.

His Lordship, after hearing the evidence, said that he was not going to go into the details of the evidence, but that he was going to go into the details of the evidence.

Mr. Francis said that he was not going to go into the details of the evidence, but that he was going to go into the details of the evidence.

His Lordship observed that if the question had come before him of the construction of an Ordinance embodying in part a home statute, he would have been bound to construe it in favour of the subject.

Mr. Francis went on to argue the points and submitted that it did not follow from the facts that Leong-Akum was not tampered with.

His Lordship did not consider he could go into the details of the evidence, but that he was going to go into the details of the evidence.

have given Leong-Akum the information necessary to enable him to escape, and the fact of the matter was that Jamal was represented to be liable, and F. M. & Co. were not liable. Therefore if Jamal was liable as a matter of fact, or if F. M. & Co. were not liable as a matter of fact, the representation was not the case.
